la fanfara di merda d'artista, 2003

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

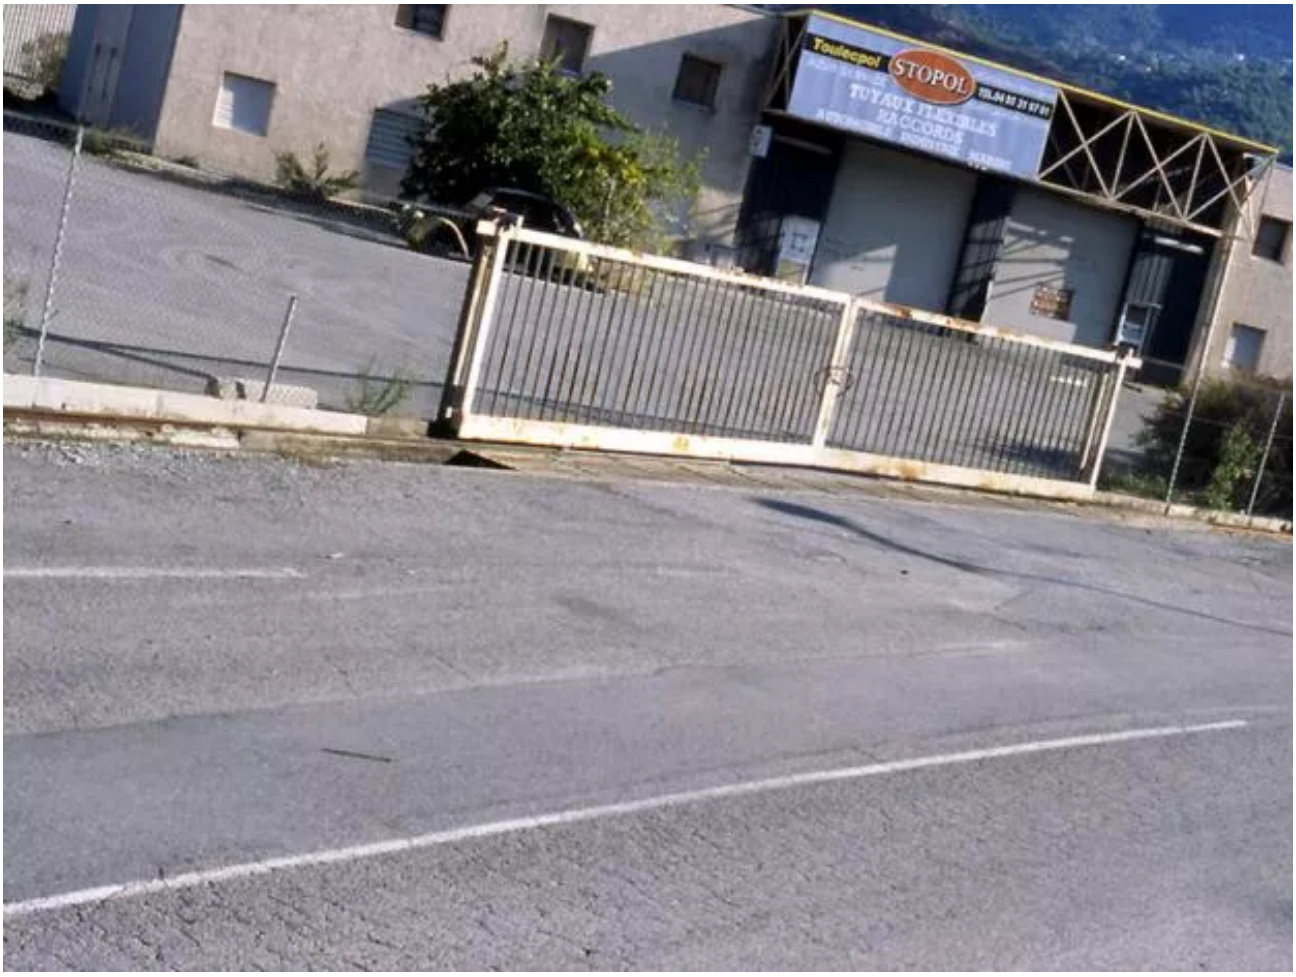

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.

A silent march with black horses, miming a cycle of defecation and renewal in the face of Europe’s depleted pockets of industrial activity.